LADY BLANCHE'S LEAGUE.

From a passage in the English Commonwealth.

In the rough days of old, when hands of power

Were laid on by the strong, and the weak

Lady Blanche was leagued in her tower,

No hope nor rescue near;

For her valiant lord had ridden away,

To meet his foe afar;

And his household troops, in bright array,

Went with him to the war.

Ever he mounted, he called his servants true—

Rise truly men—and said,

"The wife that I love I will fight with you—

Her life be on each hand!"

A trumpet was blown before her gate,

A red flag flew the sky;

"Now lay, proud lady! no dare to wait Until our furies fly."

Then her brave men's hearts were faint and low;

Their lives they valued light;

But how they fight you saw from such a foe—

Headed to one to fight.

But their noble lady cheered them all,

For her gentle blood ran high;

"Lift my husband's banner above the wall,

And raise his battle-cry!"

"For the hand of God is with the brave,

When no man's hand is near;

And my husband's house shall be my grave,

Erre Blanche knows wrong or fear!"

Then they rushed them all at their lady's word,

Quick, and loud-pealing, the guns were heard,

Till towers in ruins lay;

And for a while her men were kept to keep,

But two were strong and sound;

The rest were sleeping their long sleep,

Or stiff with a man's wound.

Poor Blanche wept sore, when the hand of night

Silenced the cannon's throat,

For well she knew the morning's light

Must see them from the moat!

All day looked her brave wanderer out

Through the gray morning cloud,

Till he suddenly raised a merry shout,

And the walls rang aloud.

"Come forth, dear lady, in joy come forth!

True hearts have won the day!"

They brother's pensive strains in the north,

And the foe have fled away!"

"Oh, that, that never, never set,

In burning glory brightly set—

Lake diamond chased in morning dew—

Have mingled in the night's blue light,

And formed one glorious constellation.

Never 'mid heaven's field of light to roam;

But gliding eye one haloed throne—

Our Island Home—our Island Home.

Oh, bright, and beautiful, and wild,

Isle bound in billows, Ocean's child;

Had'st the countess's smile to gladden

'Mid cloud and sun in beauty's pride;

And had'st the scepter of the sea—

Its depth of blue—its waste of foam;

Its gloom and sunshine, who is she?

Our Island Home—our Island Home.

Oh, count around look's sleep

The small white waves so gently leap;

Soon the dew diamonds on the sea,

Heaven's starry path—the galaxy;

Then tell the fabled beaming wide,

From cliff to cliff, from tower to dome,

That guard our island's coast and tide,

Our Island Home—our Island Home.

Our mountain woods are Freedom's flag,

Gray floating o'er our island rag;

And in our gleam blue Freedom stood,

'Mid sunshine, thunder, calm, and blood;

Her sun-waves were the sea's blue bloom,

'Mid clinks of helter-skelter foam;

But linger'd where her banner flew—

Our Island Home—our Island Home.

Our music is the wild wave's roar,

The surge of our island shore;

Our girls are the mountain wave,

Whom crestled foam the mermaid lures;

Our bulwark is the thunder's might

Of yon blue star-budded dome;

'Twas named in Heaven an eye of light—

Our Island Home—our Island Home.

ON THE PROSPECT OF THE ARTS AND SCIENCES IN AMERICA.

Of this production of Bishop Berkeley, the last verse has been frequently quoted.

The Muse, disgusted at an age and clime,

Barefoot of every glorious theme,

In lands so late no waste a better time,

Producing subjects worthy fame;

In happy clime, where from the genial sun,

And virgin earth, such scenes arise,

The force of art by nature seems undone,

And fancied beauty by the true.

In happy clime, the seat of innocence,

Where nature guides and virtue rules,

Where men shall not impose, for truth and sense,

The pedagogy of courts and schools.

There shall be sung another golden age,

The wise of nature and of art,

The good and great inspiring epic rage,

The wisest heads and noblest hearts.

Not such as Europe breeds in her decay,

Such as she breeds when free and young,

When heavenly flames did animate her clay,

By future ages shall be sung.

Westward the star of empire takes its way,

The four first acts already past,

A fifth shall close the drama with the day,

Time's noblest offspring is the last.

SELECT TALES.

SCENES IN JAMAICA.

The malady from whose fangs I had just escaped, was at this time making fearful ravages amongst the troops and white inhabitants of Jamaica generally; nor was the squadron exempted from the afflictive visitation, although it suffered in a smaller degree.

I had occasion at this time to visit Upper King,

a military post about a mile and a half from Kingston, where two regiments of infantry, and a detachment of artillery, were stationed. In the forenoon, I walked out in company with an officer, a relation of my own,

whom I had gone to visit; enjoying the fresh seabreeze that whistled past us in a gale of wind, although the sun was vertical, and shining into the bottom of a pint-pot, as the sailors have it.

The barracks were built on what appeared to me a very dry situation (although I have since heard it alleged that there was a swamp to windward of it, over which the sea-breeze blew, but this I did not see), considerably elevated above the bad sandy plain on which

Kingston stands, and sloping gently towards the sea.

They were splendid, large, airy, two-story buildings,

well raised off the ground on brick pillars, so that there was a perfectly free ventilation of air between the surface of the earth and the floor of the first story, as well as through the whole of the upper rooms.

A large balcony, or piazza, ran along the whole of south front, above and below, which shaded the brick wall of the house from the sun, and afforded a cool and comfortable lounge for the men. The outbuildings of all kinds were well thrown back into the rear, so that in front there was nothing to intercept the sea-breeze.

The officers' quarters stood in advance of the men's barracks, and were, as might be expected, still more comfortable; and in front of all were the field-officers' houses, all of substantial brick and mortar. The whole of this superb establishment stood in an extensive lawn, not surpassed in beauty by any nobleman's park that I had ever seen. It was immediately after the rains when I visited it: the grass was luxuriant and new-cut, and the trees, which grew in detached clumps, were most magnificent. We clambered up into one of them, a large umbrageous wild cotton tree, which

MISCELLANY.

SATURDAY BULLETIN.

PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 1, 1892.

(For general agent list, see fourth page.)

ALL letters addressed to this office on business in which the writer only is concerned, must in every instance be post paid. We refuse any letters which are sent to the office on business in which the writer only is concerned, unless we know them to be persons of good standing, or to contain remittances from subscribers. This course is rendered necessary by the many importations practiced on us by persons who write on frivolous occasions of their own, expecting us to pay their postage.

Complaints accumulate on us every week from subscribers failing to receive their papers by mail. Where the fault lies it is impossible for us to say, further than that it is somewhere in the Post Office Department. The papers for distant subscribers are put up with great care, after being legibly directed. When the mails are no longer crammed with political placards and pamphlets, we may hope those complaints will be less frequent than they have been.

It affords us pleasure to hear that the publication of Waldie's Select Circulating Library has proved eminently successful. The public seemed to see at a glance the advantages which it offered, and subscribers have proved by the most substantial evidences, that they would reward liberally a good literary enterprise. Mr. Waldie printed a small number first, and it is gratifying to find he is compelled to reprint the first numbers to supply the demand.

The present number of this week nearly concludes Vigor's very interesting travels in America. Next week, we perceive, the highly wrought romance, by the author of Confessions of an English Opium Eater, will be published. We cannot too often commend Mr. Waldie's periodical, and shall be glad to add any names which may be forwarded us, accompanied by a five dollar note, to his list. The work should be found on the table of every family in the Union, as it is emphatically "select."

UNITED STATES SENATOR.—Several of the Antislavery papers have announced the Hon. Richard Rush, as the Antislavery candidate for U. S. Senator. We are informed, says the Harrisburg Telegraph, from a source entitled to credit, that Mr. Rush will not be a candidate.

The Harrisburg Reporter of Friday last, says:—"We understand that George M. Dallas, Esq. will not be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate."

Congress meet on Monday, the 3d of December; and the Legislature of Pennsylvania, on the following day. The Electoral College of Pennsylvania, will meet at Harrisburg, on Wednesday, the 5th of December. Governor Wolf will be inaugurated on the 18th of December, and President Jackson on the 14th of March.

THE TARIFF, THIS WINTER.—The whole story must be told over again. It is settled by the newspapers, as they are good authority, that the tariff bill will be re-opened. The south will push for a further reduction to a mere revenue duty.

The Washington Globe pointedly contradicts the rumor concerning the intention of the Chief Magistrate to send out revenue cutters to blockade Charleston. This paper declares "that there is not the slightest pretext for the supposition that any one considers such precautions necessary to secure the collection of the revenue."

THE MESSAGE TRANSMITTED TO THE SENATE by the President, will doubtless excite an extraordinary degree of interest among the nation at large at this important and eventful crisis in the history of our country. The document will be looked for with feelings of intense expectation, proportionate to the importance of the subject matter treated of. We shall endeavor to make arrangements for the early transmission of this paper, in order that the suspense of our readers may not be unnecessarily prolonged.

EMIGRATION.—The Swallow Mercury, under the head of Rhenish Bavaria, September 9th, says—"The mass for emigration to North America still increases in this country. We have just learnt that 30 persons, each possessing a capital of from 20,000 to 25,000 dollars, have agreed to make one common stock and proceed to America."

Mr. D. Fenton of Trenton, has issued proposals for publishing by Subscription, a History of New Jersey, by Thomas F. Gordon. Smith's history of that state extends only to 1705.

The land upon which Cincinnati, Ohio, is built is said to have originally cost $9 dollars. It contained 640 acres, or a quarter section. Now, (in 1892) same part of it is said to be worth $50 a foot.

A destructive fire occurred in Boston on Wednesday last, which has been the subject of a number of newspaper paragraphs in relation to the firemen. The fire took place in State street, and spread with great rapidity. During its height a tremendous explosion of gunpowder occurred, which seriously injured a number of the firemen. The fire was subdued with great difficulty, but no sooner had the firemen returned home with their apparatus, than they were again called out, by the discovery that the fire had caught to the City Hall. In this building all the public offices of the city are situated, and the damage sustained by them is said to be immense. The injury done to the building alone is estimated at $5000 to $6000. The activity and boldness of the firemen on this occasion is greatly praised.

EXTRAORDINARY.—At the recent fire in State street, Boston, the Philadelphia engine, No. 15, played through 375 feet of hose. The engine was stationed at the corner of Jay's building, and her hose was carried up the winding stairs to the cupola; yet the force of the water, as it issued from the nozzle, was so great that it tore the stairs from the roof! What think our firemen of this performance?

The Treasurer of the Charitable Association of the Boston Fire Department acknowledges the receipt of $100 from private individuals, and in consequence of which the Transcript makes the following remarks:—"We delight in the record of such acknowledgments. No one who witnessed the operations of the Fire Department yesterday, but must be fully satisfied that wounds and bruises, contusions, sickness, and loss of limbs—not to mention loss of life, are dangers to which the members are constantly exposed. A fireman's office is no sinecure; it is as full of dangers as a soldier's. They are volunteers, without pay or ration—yet always ready, at midnight or midday, in summer's heat or winter's storm, to face the enemy. It is a reproach, a portion of which we must bear, that the Charitable Association of the Fire Department is a time of need, languishing for want of funds, when a fire can scarcely occur of any magnitude, without the certainty of its throwing on the bounty of the Association more or less persons. We earnestly ask those who are able to contribute to this charity, to think of the dangers incurred by the firemen, that property may be saved and domesticity protected. The citizens of Boston should give the association a permanent fund of at least $20,000."

The Portland Advertiser of Friday last, says:—"The value of the cargo of provisions sent from this port in the big Eastern Star, for the Cape Verde sufferers, was a little over $1000."

Jerome Bonaparte, formerly King of Westphalia, passed through Meigs, on the 10th of October, on his way from Stuttgart to London, on a visit to his brother Joseph, whom he has not seen since the dethronement of Napoleon, in 1815.

Funds are being collected in Boston, for the purpose of erecting a monument to SEVERIDIAN.

The Norfolk boat, arrived at Baltimore on Monday last, brought the unpleasant information that the Tobacco manufacturing establishment of Messrs. Myers, at Richmond, was burnt down on Saturday night. It was the most extensive concern of the kind in the United States.

The packet ship Carroll of Carrollton, Captain J. Bird, of this port, is owned by Messrs. Thomas E. Walker & Co., and recently arrived at Liverpool line. She was built at Baltimore, is about 700 tons burthen, and has gained the reputation of being one of the fastest ships that sail out of the United States. She is a first rate vessel, and has made a few voyages out of the port of New York.

The New Orleans Bee of the 13th ult. reports the ascertained majority of Jackson over Clay in Louisiana, to be seven hundred and ninety-five.

It gives us pleasure to state, says the Daily Chronicle, that the Locomotive Engine, built by our townsmen, M. W. Baldwin, for the Philadelphia, Germantown, and Norristown Railroad Company, has been proved highly successful. In the presence of a number of gentlemen of science and information on such subjects, the Engine was yesterday placed on the road for the first time. All her parts had been previously highly finished, and fitted together on Tuesday and removed to the Company's depot, and yesterday morning she was fitted together, ready for travel. After the regular passenger cars had arrived from Germantown in the afternoon, the tracks being clear, preparation was made for her starting. This placing the fire in the furnace, and raising the steam, occupied twenty minutes. The Engine, (with her tender), moved from the depot in beautiful style, working with great ease and uniformity. She proceeded about half a mile beyond the Union towers, at the township line, and returned immediately, a distance of 6 miles, at a speed of about 20 miles to the hour, her speed having been greatly slackened at all the road crossings, and it being after dark, but a portion of her power used. It is needless to say that the spectators were delighted. From this experience there is every reason to believe this Engine will draw thirty tons gross, at an average speed of forty miles to the hour, on a level road. The chief superiority of this Engine, over any of the English ones known, consists in the light weight, which is but between four and five tons, her small bulk, and the simplicity of her working machinery. We rejoice at the result of this experiment, as it conclusively shows that Philadelphia, always famous for the skill of her mechanics, is enabled to produce superior quality, as to warrant the belief that her mechanics will hereafter supply nearly all the public works in this country, and by our superiority in the adaptation of this motive power, as we have her thereto in navigation, perhaps supply Great Britain herself.

RECENT ACCOUNTS FROM THE CAPE DE VERDE ISLANDS concerning the intention of the Chief Magistrate to send out revenue cutters to blockade Charleston. This paper declares "that there is not the slightest pretext for the supposition that any one considers such precautions necessary to secure the collection of the revenue."

LATEST FROM NEW ORLEANS.

The Louisiana Advertiser of the 12th of October, gives the certainty of its throwing on the bounty of the Association more or less persons. We earnestly ask those who are able to contribute to this charity, to think of the dangers incurred by the firemen, that property may be saved and domesticity protected. The citizens of Boston should give the association a permanent fund of at least $20,000."

We have the following correct account of interments, from the Sexton of the Protestant Cemetery, from the 5th to the 11th of the month inclusive:

" 6	24
" 7	11
" 8	7
" 9	12
" 10	9
" 11	9
Total for the week,	143

We are unable to obtain a correct report from the Catholic Cemetery, of the burials during the past week. However, learn that on Saturday there were 29 burials, on Sunday 26—Total for two days 55.

At the Corporation Grave Yard, there were on Saturday 40 burials, on Sunday 10.

Nov. 11 Protestants, 9; Catholics, 25; Corporation do, 10—Total 44.

The Emporium announces that the Cholera has broken out with great violence on several plantations. Should its fatality, says the Editor, be proportionate to its ravages in this country, the lives and property of the planters would be in great jeopardy. It is now getting cold and there is a decided abatement in the disease. Indeed if it had continued at the same fearful rate, for a short time, but few could have been left to tell the tale. For a few days I felt the depressing influence of the pestilential atmosphere, but now find myself perfectly well. We are getting in better spirits, and hope that we shall soon be able to speak of it as a thing past."

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28. I have no doubt I am on board the Saratoga. I could not pluck the worst from the cholera, but I have been in the city since a sweeper of the plain. The division has been just about equal between yellow fever, cold plague, and cholera.

This morning I witnessed the ceremony of burning seventeen dead bodies. They had remained so long that they could not be removed from the place where they were buried. The accounts of this horrid hospital are truly awful. Of course we shall have a full exposition hereafter. On board ship we have every comfort, and I think an atmosphere entirely different from the city. We have had a great change in the weather. It is now quite cold, and there is every prospect of frost.

The prospects are great for the sugar crop, provided the Cholera does not take off too many of the negroes. Some plantations are suffering excessively from the disease, but I think it will now pass by.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28. Capt. Farron, of the brig Monmouth, arrived at New Orleans on the 24th inst. He left on the 23d of October, informs us that a Spanish brig from Vigo arrived the day previous to his sailing, whose Captain reported that Don Miguel's fleet had been chased into that port by Admiral Sartorius. The authorities of that place reported that they should be demolished and laid up or proceed to sea immediately, they charged the latter alternative, when an engagement ensued in which Don Miguel's fleet were captured and were standing for Oporto.

After having tested Mr. West's blacking, we do not hesitate in recommending it to the public as an article far superior to any we have ever used. We fully agree with Mr. W. when he says:

"Oh! Clumsy Blacking is the best, and only made by James L. West."

TRIBUTE TO MR. WALTER SCOTT.

On Tuesday evening, the 29th ult., a Lecture was delivered by Hon. Rufus Choate, before the Lyceum, Massachusetts, Lyceum, on the genius of Sir Walter Scott. The following diary, written for the occasion, by Alonzo Lewis, Esq. was sung by a full choir.

At—Old Handed.

The Mighty Minstrel no more!
He sleeps beneath the hollowed clay;
His magic harp no more is strung,
And quenched his pure and classic ray.

Through all his works mark Nature's mournful
And solemn dwell on full and dale;
Her altar now untended burns,
For who shall sing his minstrel tale?

'Twas his the worth of ancient day
To breathe, in high heroic strain;
'Twas his to beat the palmier lay,
And mad-dad warrior live again!

He was the deep and potent spell,
Which made the North Atlantic deep;
In his creative thought we find
The mighty power that Shakespeare knew!

Above his grave may Scotland weep,
And pour her notes of deepest woe;
The universe his genius shall keep,
And nations bid his praises flow!

In many a land to him unknown,
Over many a wild and distant wave,
His name has built a living throne,
Whose reign shall long outlast his grave!

Your humble servant, &c.
JOHN SKEIN.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

FAMILY CABINET ATLAS.

This book may be justly considered the most valuable addition to modern Geography which has ever been published. It contains no less than 100 maps and tables. The object of the publishers, "to supply with distinctness and accuracy the greatest quantity of geographical information in the smallest possible compass," has been most effectually attained. This little volume will be found to contain forty and fifty thousand names of places, twenty thousand of which have the latitude and longitude affixed, affording a body of information three times as extensive as that supplied by the generality of quarto atlases. In the preparation of this work, neither pains nor expense have been spared in obtaining the latest authorities; while the mechanical execution of the work, the engraving, the coloring of the maps, the neatness of its typography, with the beautiful paper on which it is printed, altogether render it the most splendid volume of the kind ever issued from the American press, rivaling the annuals in beauty, and surpassing them in usefulness. Every student should be possessed of this rare and valuable work.

CABINET OF HISTORY.

The same publishers (Carey and Lea) have issued another number of the Cabinet of History, embracing the HISTORY OF SWITZERLAND, from B. C. 110 to the year 1830. We are glad to find the publication of these works continued with so much regularity, and more, to find them so extensively encouraged by the public as to warrant their being stereotyped. The general character of the History of Switzerland needs no particularization here; the author of this volume appears to have aimed to compress within reasonable limits all mere local matter, while he has dwelt largely on points of national character of European interest. The work may be regarded as authentic and entertaining.

CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

A Literary person who has for some time had it in contemplation to establish a Circulating Library, but who is compelled by other duties to relinquish the project, offers for sale the entire collection, which, as far as it goes, is believed to be admirably adapted to the purpose. It consists of between seven and eight hundred volumes of the best modern Novels, Tales, Romances, Histories, Biographies, Poems, Travels, &c., including a number of old and valuable Novels now out of print. The books are principally new. To avoid the trouble of sending them to auction, they will be sold for three hundred dollars, being about one fourth the Bookkeepers' charges. This is a good opportunity for commencing a Circulating Library, or for a person who wishes to acquire a permanent, profitable and pleasant livelihood. If not sold before the new year they will be otherwise disposed of. Until that time, application, if by letter post paid, may be made to L. H. PAUL, No. 79 Second Street, Philadelphia, where the books can be examined.

THE KNICKERBOCKER.

NEW-YORK MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

PROFESSOR, Prose and Poetry, commencing at an early day the publication in this city, of a Monthly Magazine. The work when fully established will consist of Tales, Novels, and Essays, with notices of the Arts, Views of Society at home and abroad; Comments on the Fashions and temper of the times; Gleanings from the least accessible of foreign publications, and the earliest on date in history, sporting, and fashionable circles. The above list of subjects, and the literary and scientific character of the Magazine, will be the principal object of THE KNICKERBOCKER, or NEW-YORK MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Each number will contain 24 quarto pages of letter press, printed with an entirely new and beautiful type, procured expressly for the work. The paper, of the finest American manufacture, will be of the same quality with that used in the Atlantic, and attached in an elegant united cover. The greatest attention to short will be paid to the typographical appearance, while superior Engravings will from time to time ornament and enrich the publication.

Three of the subscription—Four Dollars per annum, payable on the delivery of the fourth number. Should the completion of their subscription list barely enable the publishers to commence the Magazine, the contents of the earlier numbers will be one half original and the remainder selected; but should the publication meet with the success that is anticipated, it will gradually assume an entirely original character. The publishers have prepared, if not in their designs by the public, to enable the acknowledged talent in the country, and call on it to reflect the literary and scientific character of the Atlantic. They must meet with commendation themselves, however, before they can venture to patronize, through perfectly content that all the efforts of the work shall go to improve its character. In the meantime, without mentioning the names of the contributors who have been continually plied, and they feel warranted in stating that arrangements have been made, which will enable them to commence their undertaking, under literary auspices the most favorable.

On the 29th, of the prevailing epidemic, on board the steamer Express, on his way from Louisville to St. Louis, Lieut. Colonel Wm. Macrae, of the 2d Regiment U. S. Artillery, aged 43 years, upwards of 41 of which had been passed in the service of his country.

At New Orleans, on the 25th Oct. of Malignant Fever, Dr. Conny, Druggist, late of Philadelphia.

At Detroit, of Cholera, on the 31st ult. Conrad Schaeffer, aged 62 years, a long resident of that place, and an honest and respectable citizen. The fortunes of the deceased were in some respects romantic and singular. When a child, he was, with a younger brother, snatched from their parents (then residing in Kentucky) by a band of Indians from the frontier. After numerous hardships, he was purchased from his savage masters by a trader, and taken to Montreal, where he was taught the tailor's trade. His brother remained with the Indians to the day of his death, (died of an arrow wound). In time he married and returned to Detroit, where he was sometimes visited by his brother, whom he often urged to forsake his Indian habits and connections, and come and partake of his more comfortable home; but his brother had been long among the red hunters to rub the comforts of a permanent abode, or to use his own strong language of a "wigwam that cannot be removed."

In Springfield, Orange county, New York, on the 16th, Dr. David Little, aged 56 years, and President of the Central Bank. Forty-two years ago, when a youth, he emigrated from Lebanon, Connecticut, and has here since practiced as a physician ever since. A friendless, a stranger, without pecuniary means, came with the Pioneer of Orange; and by dint of persevering industry, amassed a princely fortune, collected a circle of warm respectable friends, and performed his professional duties to universal acceptance. According to his wishes, he did not outlive his professional usefulness. Long will his estimable family deplore his loss.
